October 23.

The County Judge has, in pursuance to a petition, had an order made for a vote on the school tax in the Marion school district and the order directs the Sheriff to hold the election on October 21 1893. This is something the people of Marion should give serious consideration. It has come to the point where some action has got to be taken in school matters.

Marion's reputation for a good school has done more to make a prosperous, growing town than any other one thing, save and except the railroad. The school has been a source of pride to the town, and it is with the people of Marion to turn the tide and again make a good school, an institution that will add to the citizenship, and to the business of the town, by its dissection and inactivity, let things go as they are going and give other towns the money that should be spent in Marion.

Come and let us reason together on this thing. If it will help Marion to have a graded free school, with ample accommodations for all the children here and who may come here, let us not quibble about the small amount of tax necessary to build a house.

Jim's A Success.

From the Atlanta Journal we learn that Rev. J. W. Bigham, formerly of this place, is one of the chief lights in big tabernacle meeting at Cartersville, Ga., the home of Sam Jones, and in connection with the latter gentleman, he is stirring up the people of that place. On the 3rd, Rev. Bigham preached a sermon on "Who is my neighbor?" and says the paper:

"There has been considerable feeling and division here for some time caused by the unpleasant affair between the pastor of the Baptist church, At the close of the sermon the preachers, Rev. Mr. Bigham and Rev. Sam P. Jones called on all who could in those the views set forth, and who were willing to give up all prejudice and ill feeling and become united as brethren ought to be, come forward and give their hands in token of their sincerity. Hundreds responded, and it was evident that great good was accomplished by the services. Mr. Bigham arose and said, with much feeling, that if he had harmed anyone in any way whatever, real or imaginary, he was willing to get down on his knees before them and beg their pardon.

Cartersville is evidently getting right religiously. The tabernacle meeting has certainly been a success so far. It has now reached the point where great good may be accomplished."

In the primary election by Louisville Democrats last week, Tyler defeated Jacobs for mayor by about 2,500 majority, and after standing over the matter twenty-four hours, Jacobs wrote a letter to the Democratic Committee saying that he had decided to accept the result of the primary. That must have been very ungenerous in Mr. Jacobs, but down in the "Pennyrite" when a fellow is snowed under by that large majority, it takes him about a year to "get his breath," to say nothing of writing a better "accepting" the drubbing he has already received.

At Calvert City in Marshall county the presence of negroes will not be tolerated. Whenever one puts in his appearance, he is told to depart in a manner that obedience is a pleasure.

LINDSAY SPEAKS.

Kentucky's New Senator For the Repeal of the Sherman Law.

The Policy of the Administration
Able Defended.

Washington, Sept. 14. The debate in the Senate on the repeal bill today was altogether in the affirmative. Two speeches were made in favor of the bill, the first by a Democratic Senator, Mr. Lindsay, of Kentucky, and the second by a Republican, Mr. Higgins, of Idaho. Both were unusually strong and unambiguously in the repeal of the Sherman law.

Mr. Lindsay argued that the repeal bill left unimpaired the fall of 1890, so far as it affected the coinage of silver. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry.

Mr. Lindsay also argued that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry.

Mr. Lindsay also argued that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry.

Mr. Lindsay also argued that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry. He said that the repeal of the Sherman law would be to the benefit of the silver industry.

take the necessary step in the restoration of public confidence. It seemed to him that there should be but one national answer to that question, and that all should agree, without regard to party affiliations, that the consequences of the mistake of 1890, if they could not be wholly relieved, should at least be not further aggravated by a consistent adherence to that mistake; and yet in the face of Mr. Morgan's position as to the effect of the Sherman law, and their realization, the Senate had been told the other day by the other Senator from Alabama, Mr. Pugh, that no Senator had signed a bill which he believed the Sherman law to be the cause of the financial disturbance.

If the Senator meant that no Senator had signed it to be solely and not wholly responsible for it, then he said "yes." But if Mr. Pugh meant that no Senator had signed it to be solely and not wholly responsible for it, then he said "yes." But if Mr. Pugh meant that no Senator had signed it to be solely and not wholly responsible for it, then he said "yes."

The President had said nothing and done nothing inconsistent with his letter of acceptance. That letter, he said, was acceptable to Mr. Pugh, and that there was not a word or sentence in it which had not been heartily and used. And as the disposition to repeal the Sherman act over the Administration in terror could mean but one thing, and that was that those who opposed the repeal bill did not believe that the President would, in good faith, carry out the platform on which he was elected, or permit Congress to carry out that platform, if by the exercise of power, he could prevent it. That had been made clear the other day by what Mr. Pugh had said that in this life struggle between the two metals, the gold standard and had the tremendous advantage of having the Executive power, in the shape of a veto, and the patronage and necessary influence.

He had read the Senator's (Mr. Pugh's) speech in vain to find the evidence on which he rested his belief that the President did not intend to keep faith with his party and his people. If Democratic Senators had been sincere in their opinion as to the Sherman law, it would be difficult for them now to convince the people that existing circumstances justified them in rebuking the President for opinions which he had not announced, and to act on the assumption that he did not intend to carry out the pledges of the party. But the Democracy, the plain people, would not give up their confidence in the man whom they had chosen as their President (without the assistance and against the efforts of politicians) until he had broken faith with them, not before.

He (Mr. Lindsay) could not be and would not be a party to a course of conduct the tendency of which was to make a breach in the Democratic ranks, on the groundless suspicion that he whom the people trusted as they had trusted no other public man in this generation was quietly awaiting the opportunity to break faith with his party his friends and with the country. That was not the way to sustain Democratic power, but it was the way to prove to the people that their confidence had been misplaced, and that the Democratic party was not equal to the responsibilities which it had assumed. To himself the way was clear to accept no amendment to the repeal bill—with the mildest confidence that any act which Congress might pass and which would conform to the principle of the Chicago platform would receive executive approval.

The remainder of Mr. Lindsay's speech was devoted to a defense of Secretary Carlisle from the imputation that he had been a party to the conspiracy of New York bankers to bring about a panic in order to compel a repeal of the Sherman law.

FORTY DROWNED.

Town Town of Villa Canas, in Spain, Devastated by a Flood.

Madrid, Sept. 15. The town of Villa Canas, in the province of Toledo, has been devastated by floods, and a large number of lives have been lost. Heavy rains have fallen in the province, and the town, which is situated on rather low ground, was inundated. The people had no thought of danger, though the many small streams in the vicinity of the town were rapidly swelling and threatening to overflow their banks.

Late last night, when most of the inhabitants had retired, the waters from the hills, where there had probably been a cloudburst, swept down on the doomed town, carrying away almost everything in its path. Huge trees, that had been torn bodily from the ground, swept along on the crest of the rushing waters, and were hurled with frightful violence against the houses in the path of the onrushing tide. These trees acted as battering rams, and carried houses before them. So sudden was the catastrophe that the afflicted people had no chance of saving themselves. Men and women, awakened from sound sleep by the rattling of their dwellings, frantically rushed to windows and leaped out, only to be engulfed in the water that was now rising and swirling about the falling debris were rapidly undermined by the waters, and in many cases collapsed before their occupants could leave them. The masses of wreckage going down on the flood in some instances offered a means of escape to persons who would otherwise have been drowned.

It is positively known that forty persons were drowned, and it is believed that the bodies of many others are buried under the ruins of their homes. It is thought that the Government will have to extend aid to the town. The people are so stricken by the disaster that they display no concern over the loss of their relatives or property, and assistance will have to be given them until they recover from the blow.

A Horrible Fate.

Rhetstown, Tenn., Sept. 15. Near Millersville postoffice, the residence of Milton Myers, a wealthy farmer, was totally destroyed by fire last night, and three children, aged ten, eight and three years, were burned. The rest of the family barely escaped with their lives. Mrs. Myers, with an infant two weeks old, jumped from a second story window and is now in a precarious condition.

THE MAD RUSH.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE GO
LIKE THE WIND FOR THE
NEW ISLAND.

In The Twinkle of an Eye the Multitudes Swam over the Strip.

Arkansas City, Kans., Sept. 16. This has been a day long to be remembered by thousands upon thousands of people. An army as great in number as any army that fought in the civil war today invaded a new empire and planted families of another race upon the soil of the red men in the coveted Cherokee Strip. The invasion, although a peaceful one, was none the less magnificent in its proportions, and great consequences depend upon its action. This invasion, unlike the invasion of an army, was not directed by the hand of any great general; no man acted as leader and directed the points of attack. Like the swarming hordes of Northernmen, they came in bands, colonies and dozens; in threes and fours, hundreds and thousands, acting individually for themselves, responsible to no one.

The number of people massed at various points is estimated to have been as follows: Arkansas City, Kan., 25,000; Hennessey, Kan., 20,000; Cameron, 5,000; Caldwell, 5,000; Higgins, Tex., 5,000; Hennessey, Ok., 10,000; Cantonment, 5,000; Oklahoma, 20,000; Stillwater, Ok., 10,000; total, 100,000. Half as many more were scattered in little groups along the 100 miles of back line. Thirty thousand certificates were issued at the Oklahoma booth, 35,000 at Hennessey and 20,000 at Stillwater.

At the meridian hour the start was made. For an hour before the borders of the strip were black with men, horses and teams. From the elevation at Oklahoma the line could be seen for a distance of eight miles east and ten miles west. In each direction the line was crowded, until there appeared but a black ribbon outlined on the gray surface about them. Half an hour later some one would shout the hour of noon, and fifty to a hundred horsemen would start out of line, only to be driven back by the cavalrymen who were patrolling the strip in front of the impatient throng.

At last a puff of smoke was seen on the plains to the north, and soon a dull report of a cannon was heard. A dozen carbines along the line were fired in response to the signal, and the line was broken. At once the line broke up, and the men were scattered. At once the line broke up, and the men were scattered. At once the line broke up, and the men were scattered.

The trains were loaded rapidly. At first there was an attempt to examine the registration certificates, but this was soon given up, as the rushing thousands pushed those ahead of them the trainmen giving all their time to collecting the tickets. The first train of twelve cars pulled across the line at noon, crowded as trains never were before. Platforms and roofs of cars were a black with human life as were the insides. Following this train, with an interval of only two or three minutes, went another and another until the last, consisting of flat and coal cars, all crowded, had pulled across the line, followed by at least 3,000 disappointed, panting men, who were determined not to be deprived of their rights.

The run to Perry was made in three-quarters of an hour. Before the train stopped men began climbing out of the windows and jumping from the platforms in their haste to secure the claims. Ahead of the train were at least 1,000 horsemen who had come over the ten miles from the lines in express-lent short time, and claimed all the lots immediately about the land office and the public well. They were rubbing down their weary horses as the trains were unloading. Soon the last of the trains pulled in, and the scramble for land continued with increased vigor. The quarter sections about the town had all been taken, but in every direction lines were being run and additional towns laid out to be called North Perry, South Perry, East Perry and West Perry. By 2 o'clock fully 20,000 men and women of all nationalities and colors were on the site of what all hope will be a great city, without food and water.

The scenes at Enid were but a repetition of those at Perry. Fifteen thousand men made the run into the trip from Caldwell. Thirty-five cattle cars were jammed early, and hundreds were disappointed. All the horsemen and footmen seekers were in the line by 10 o'clock. Many women in masculine attire rode horses and some women on bicycles. The day was so hot that dusty.

There was a jam at Chickasaw Creek, which, owing to the top north bank, was passable at only a few points. In many instances men leaped their horses down the Chickasaw Creek embankment, landing in the water and hastily scrambling out again.

SHOWED NO MERCY.

Particulars of the Quadruple
Lynching in Alabama.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 15—Full particulars of the shooting of the four negroes in the Pickens county jail at Carrollton, Ala., were received today. The negroes were in jail charged with robbery and arson, and an effort was being made by their lawyers to have them released on habeas corpus. They had burned three gin houses for one farmer, and the people, fearing that they might be released on some legal quibble, to continue their depredations decided to lynch them.

They overpowered the sheriff, and went into jail intending to take the negroes out, but the prisoners set up such an uproar that the mob feared the town would be burned, and their efforts frustrated, they, therefore, shot them down in their cells.

Excitement is high and the feeling intense. The town is divided into two bitter parties—regular Democrats and Alliance, and each faction is charging the crime upon the other.

FLIGHT OF JAIL BIRDS.

Five Prisoners, Under Penthouse
Sentry, Cut Through a Brick Wall.

Leedsford, Ky., Sept. 18. Five prisoners all white, escaped from the county jail last night by gaining access to the bathroom, then cutting through a brick wall and letting themselves down by means of blankets tied together. They were three Haysites, under sentence of three years in the penitentiary for malicious shooting, Jack Skiles and Tom Minton, one year each in the penitentiary for robbery, Noah Hurdin and Henry McQuillen, under jail sentences for minor offenses. Claude Shuglue, colored, sentenced to the penitentiary for four years for robbery, refused to take advantage of the opportunity to escape.
